

1. My Style

- A perfect mix of strict and relaxed. Sometimes I need a bit of both to be the most effective
- I like to be informed about what is going on around me
- I want to know my responsibilities in what I am assigned to do. If there's wiggle room or gray space, it makes me a little anxious.
- I want people to come to me when I have made a mistake and tell me what the problem is. If I need correction in something, if the correction is worded more like a suggestion for a better outcome instead of an over-emphasis in my faults, I am more likely to make the correction AND have a good attitude about it.

2. What I value

- Reliability. I need myself and those around me to do what we say we will do. Sometimes I feel that I need to be responsible for other's responsibilities if I don't think they will get it done or won't do a good job.
- Honesty. I need people to tell me how things are straight up. No "beating around the bush"
- Good communication. Giving everyone a chance to speak and share ideas and suggestions to resolve problems creates an environment that I want to be in.

3. What I don't have patience for

- Stubbornness and close-mindedness are some of my pet-peeves. If somebody isn't willing to hear another point of view or try to understand my ideas, I do not want to work with them. Wanting to do something a certain way "just because," really tests my patience.

4. How best to communicate with me

- Spanish
- In person or text is usually the best. I want to be corrected with love. I'm not an idiot and I do things to the best of my abilities. I know I'm not perfect. When I need to be better, I want to be told straight up, but not feel worthless because of how the correction was delivered.

5.How to help me

- Understand where my current understanding is at BEFORE trying to fix the “problem.” Everything I do has a purpose and some kind of thinking behind it, even if small. If I am doing something wrong, it is because I am not aware of the better option. I am not set in stone in all my ways. I am willing to try new things in order to achieve a better or more effective outcome

6.What people misunderstand about me

- Even though I like organization and being in the know, I love to make people laugh and keep the mood light. Some take that as I am not a serious person or that I don't have that side to me, but I do and I can use it if needed
